

Hog Report®

Oink, oink, snort... here comes the Hog Report®.

Hog of the Week

The Hog of the Week award goes to the Knuckle Dusters... again. This is rapidly becoming a very dangerous team by addition; free agent acquisitions Lawrence Maroney, Marques Colston, Greg Jennings, Rex Grossman, and Marion Barber III. Looks like Augie already has a stable full of keepers for next year's draft. Hopefully he can draft better than Hennings did. Congratulations on being this week's Hog of the Week.

What The Heck Happened?

Week 4

Who needs a good draft? Augie has built a winning team with players nobody wanted at the draft through free agency. Only 3 Knuckle Duster starters this past weekend were drafted. The free agents accounted for 71 of this week's high score of 97 fantasy points. Studly Maroney (benched) picked up 140 yards and 2 TD's. Blackcats also benched some productive players, Jerious Norwood gained 106 yards and a TD and Bernard Berrian had 113 yards and a TD. A side note, Blackcats beat Knuckle Dusters in the ESPN league. Boden is 1-3 in each league now.

McNabb ran and passed his way past the Packers on MNF, helping the Buffalo Soldiers hand the Widowmakers their second defeat in as many weeks. Spencer takes sole possession of first place in the Three Athletes and a Thinker division. Hennings is getting frustrated... "When a young man's fancy (fantasy) turns to spring". Fancy this... the preseason favorite is 2-2, has a breakdown record of 18-25-1, and is averaging 77 points per week. Get him while you can, something tells me the Widowmakers will turn it around soon!

Both teams enter the contest looking for their first victory of the season. The Rough Riders, behind the reconstructed shoulder of Drew Brees, used a balanced fantasy scoring attack to derail any Southsiders' hope of winning. Roosevelt has been scoring respectably the last few weeks... 88, 85, and 90. Finally, he gets the win and stands just a game behind the Widowmakers. Look for the Southsiders and Widowmakers to put together one of those "Fun League" type trades. I know, I know... can't we just forget about that debacle?

DT grinds out a tough win against the undermanned Bear Necessities. Tough week for Butch as he had numerous "byes" to manage around... he picks up WR Chris Henry who is deactivated before Sunday for disciplinary reasons. How about them Falcons? Humiliated by the Saints last Monday night... this past Sunday they stuck it to Arizona QB's Kurt Warner and Matt Leinart. DT's defense got 2 interceptions, 2 fumbles recovered, 4 sacks, and a touchdown.

The Pigskins received a gift from the fantasy gods. Schumann was flying high with incredible performances from Santana Moss and Reggie Williams... then sat down in front of the HDTV to watch his stud RB finish off the Pigskins on MNF. The Eagles had other ideas... Westbrook was held out of the game to rest his swollen knee. Hopefully this painful loss for Brad results into a healthier running back the rest of the season. With the Mulligan, the Pigskins remain undefeated heading into a big Doomsday showdown against their undefeated arch rival D-Teasers.

Rueter gets his first victory ever in the SFFL. Julius Jones scored a 5-yard touchdown run in the third quarter... then, an idiot named Albert Haynesworth was caught on camera stomping on the head of Dallas Cowboy center Andre Gurode with cleats causing 30 stitches. Criminal charges are pending. The NFL has suspended Haynesworth 5 games without pay. This has absolutely nothing to do with the River Rats or War Pigs, but we'd like to point out how on top of breaking news we think the Hog Report® is.
